Mrs. Edna West of San Francisco holds her 19-monthold son, David Lee, after being reunited with him yesterday following what she called his "kidnaping" by Carthage, Tex., authorities. David was seized by court order from the Carthage home of Mrs. West's Negro maid, Eunella Sims. Mrs. West, 31, a night club hatcheck girl, said she had given the maid permission to take the boy. # House Starts Session; Few Solons Attend

WASHINGTON (UPD) - The House formally reconvened for its pre-election session today with only a handful of members on tap and Democratic leaders indicating most of President Eisenhower's legislative demands will be lost in the political shuffle.

Before the session began at noon, Speaker Sam Rayburn scoffed at Eisenhower's statement that Congress could enact the entire 21-point legislative program he demanded when the Senate reconvened last Monday.

QUOTES PRESIDENT

Rayburn, holding a news conference just before he called the house to order, noted that the president said last week it was "silly" to say it would take weeks and months for Congress to act on the program he called for in his special message last Monday.

"Nobody with any legislative background and experience would think we could put through a legislative program like that even between now and next January," Rayburn

THIS GOOD LIFE

This good life may be identified by a camping trip, a new hit play, or a quiet evening at home. But here in America it is really much more than these or other material things.

More than anything else, the good life is brought about by the freedom to choose your own way. This freedom, which is yours for every decision from a brand of fishing tackle to your choice of a career, makes life rich and exciting.

And what provides the information for your choices in material things? Probably advertising. It tells you what is available . . . makes even the everyday choices interesting and fun.

Advertising is information. So long as our mental appetites are stimulated by the freedom of choice offered through advertising, we will continue to be an alert, progressive nation.

No Big New Marin Outlays Without Full Public Debate

Are YOU in favor of austerity when it comes to spending taxpayers' money? We are.

Almost everybody we know will answer "yes" to that question. And they probably will keep answering "yes" right up to the moment they see their "ox may be gored."

When County Auditor Leon DeLisle outlined his rather simple arithmetic for achieving some degree of austerity in the 1960-61 Marin County budget, about a month ago, the Board of Supervisors listened intently, seeming to accept the proposal hopefully.

Two weeks later, Supervisor William D. Fusselman spoke the first criticism we heard. He alluded to the possibility that DeLisle might be a candidate for reelection in 1962 and implied that De-Lisle's austerity proposal might be a vote-getting device.

The county auditor replied in kind, but we'll not take space to repeat it ail here again.

A week later, the opposition became a "Who, Me?" chorus when Supervisor Vera Schultz joined Fusselman to insist that the supervisors had always pared budgets to bare essentials during the course of budget hearings each year.

Various department heads took the floor to insist that their budgets were appropriately austere before ever they were submitted to the supervisors. And indeed in the eyes of the office holder spending taxpayers' money they probably were quite austere.

But were they from the taxpayers' point of view?

We can't tell for sure from where we sit. But we recognized several basic truths among the things DeLisle had to say.

For instance, new programs unquestionably have been approved in the past without full public discussion, by the very simple process of merely putting money for them into the budget which subsequently gets approved rather routinely. It may be that the instigator of the new program at some quiet luncheon away from the supervisors' chambers reached an understanding with the supervisors, but the matter never was subjected to the test of public debate. As we say, this has happened.

The essence of what DeLisle suggests, as we understand it, is that department heads should be prepared to come before the board of Supervisors in public session to fully justify their requests before the additional expenditures are voted.

We are heartily in favor of that idea. An acquaintence of ours frequently reminds us that "the only money the government has is what it takes away from us taxpayers."

We are in favor of any and all procedures that will keep to the necessary minimum the amount the government takes away from us.

DeLisle's plan seems aimed at doing just that; we think it's fine.

Let us hope it is adopted as regular procedure in the future.

By K. C. THALER

The two European leaders are keeping their ideas for a reform of NATO secret so far. They agreed on a joint policy at a recent special meeting in Paris, but have disclosed no details.

The demand for a reform of the alliance can be expected to be one of the first major problems of allied unity that will face the new U.S. administration after the presidential election.

Germany's plans for a revamping of NATO are not clear thus far, except that she, too, favors closer consultation on major policy decisions within the alliance-especially with the United States.

The alignment has steadily drawn closer together and, since the ill-fated Anglo-French Suez campaign, consultation among its members has tightened in an effort to align major policies before they are put into effect.

But the United States and Britain have let it be understood that, while they are anxious to consult with their European allies, they cannot bind themselves to a degree which could paralyze swift action in times of emergency.

This attitude still prevails and is likely to be maintained in any reform of NATO which might be initiated by the

The 39-year-old woman, who had never piloted a plane, acted quickly and decisively. With her husband's body slumped over the controls, she managed to keep the plane flying until she could figure out how to land without cracking up.

Eventually the plane dipped down sharply and hit the ground at a steep angle, bouncing nearly 40 feet into the air. The engine was hurled 100 feet and the left wing crumbled. But the resourceful woman extricated herself from the shattered wreckage.

As one of the many who believe in the survival and growth of the Novato Community Club, I attended this meeting, which was for the purpose of considering an Novato amendment to the by-laws of club. This amendment was for the express purpose of dissolving the Community the City of Novato. The meeting, which was void of any legal authority, was attended by ONLY 36 active members, most of whom were the "old-timers" of the club. But even with this small percentage of the membership—total membership is 215-it was very apparent that the majority of those present did not favor dissolving the club and turning the property over to the city with no provisions for the continued use of the clubhouse by the Community

A small minority group at the meeting attempted to confuse the issue at hand by inferring that the city would make arrangements at some later date for the club's use of the facilities. But very few of the members present at the meeting would accept such vague guarantees; especially since the city council has not made one such assertion concerning the Community Club should they receive the property rights.

The man, Harrison Paul, of Solano county, sued the Rodgers Bottling Company after the

The Appeal court decision indicated the company's defense had been based on the possibility the vending machine from which the bottle of soda was purchased might have been tampered with. It said the dead mouse in the bottle breached the "implied warranty" of the bottling company and the tampering was not at issue.
